

VIVIEN NGO

Vivien Ngo began her music career with a PSC-ABRSM scholarship awarded on the strength of her LRSM Diploma.

Her 3 years studying at the Royal College of Music [London] saw her winning numerous prizes including the Ellen Marie Curtis Prize, Cornelius Fischer Prize and gold medals at several festivals.

On her return to Singapore, she served with the Ministry of Education and was one of the pioneer teachers of the Music Elective Programme.

She continued to be actively performing solo concerts and accompanying local and foreign artistes.

Vivien has also been an instrumental staff member of the LaSalle College of the Arts and for several years, an instrumental teacher at the National Institute of Education.

She is a keen supporter of the Singapore Performing Arts Festival, having both sent many of her students as participants as well as serving as Adjudicator on a few occasions.

Her teaching career has seen many students successfully achieve distinctions in their examinations and winning competitions. A sizeable number have entered the music profession as instrumental teachers and music educators.

Vivien continues to be sort after as a teacher who nurtures in her students a love for the music they play.
